WALKS BETWEEN CLASSES

Where you, the students, have met and exchanged your ideas, your hopes, your dreams—to you and to all the other memories that made the time spent at the Mount “the best years of our lives,” we dedicate this book.

J. M. J.

June, 1954

Dear Graduates,

You, the members of the class of 1954, are uniquely privileged to be graduated from a college dedicated to the Mother of God in a year proclaimed by our Holy Father, Pius XII, the Marian Year.

In his encyclical—Fulgens Corona Glorieae—his Holiness states that the centenary of the Immaculate Conception should stimulate Christians to conform their lives to that of Mary, and to place their trust in "Our Powerful Mother."

And so today, my dear seniors, I can think of no fitter recommendation for graduates of Mount St. Mary's than to say to each one of you: Let your lives reflect Mary; place yourself and your whole future under the patronage of this loving mother.

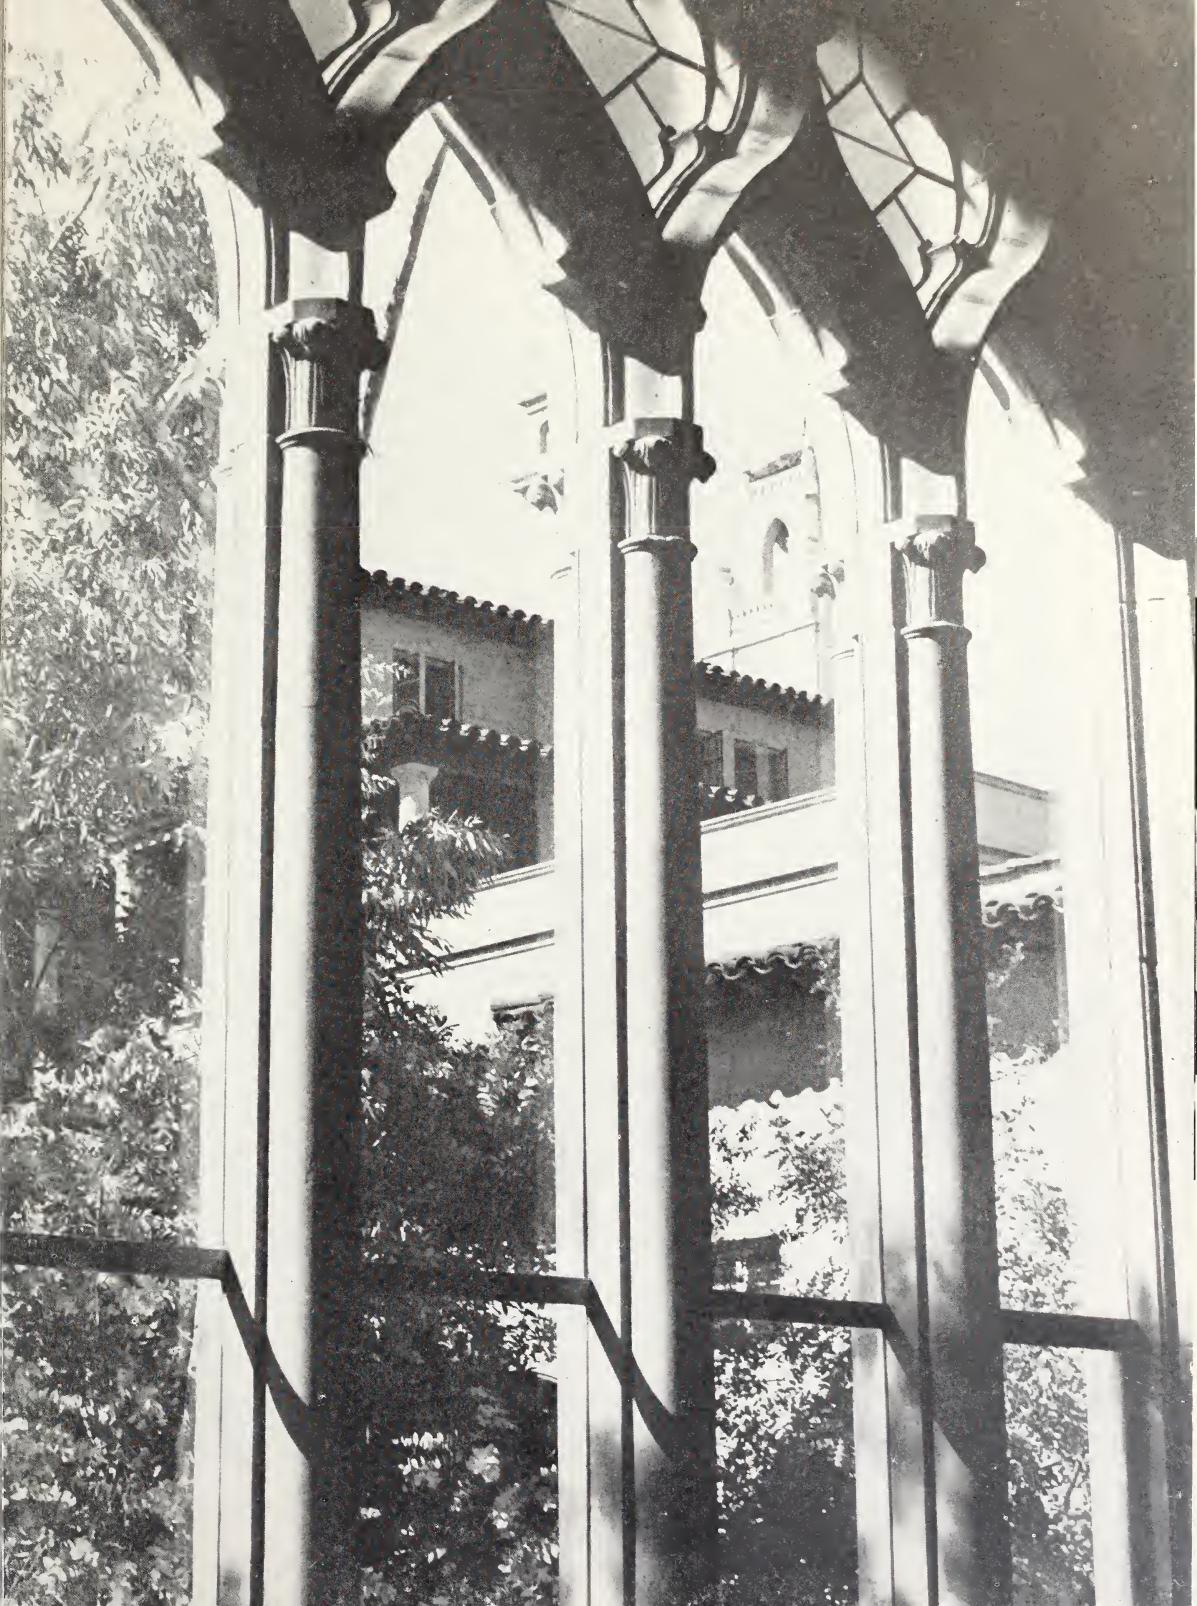

During your college years you have prepared yourselves for a special vocation. If your choice be marriage, the special instruction you have received has convinced you that a Catholic college alumna, taking Mary as her exemplar of the true wife and mother, must in turn convince the rest of the world of the unity and indissolubility of marriage.

If our Lord has favored you with a religious vocation, you will serve Him through Mary in your work of teaching, nursing, care of the poor and the unfortunate.

If a career appeals to you, again I refer you to Fulgens Corona in which our Holy Father begs that prayers be offered for the youth of today that they take an active part in the affairs of the world and spread religious truths to the law-making bodies; that they help bring back Christ to the world through Mary.

Live up, dear graduates, to the high spiritual and intellectual ideals Mount St. Mary's College has tried to instill in your hearts and minds. You are equipped to "Christianize the Christians and to Marianize every one."

Sister Agnes Marie

TO THE GRADUATES OF 1954:

As your days as students here at the Mount are drawing to a close, our hearts are filled with high hopes and lofty aspirations for each one of you. For four years you have been preparing yourselves to take your places in a world that needs Christian principles and Christian ideals. The theology that has been so important a part of your education, and the philosophy that you have learned here at Mount St. Mary's College have enabled you, we trust, to go forth possessing wisdom and values that measure happiness and success not in terms of material standards but in the light of eternal verities.

Your graduation coming as it does in the Marian year should serve to emphasize for you the importance of realizing in your lives the ideals of true Christian womanhood embodied in her who is "our life, our sweetness and our hope."

To you the Church has given much and from you she has the right to expect much. To you the Church looks for leadership in the numerous fields that are the special sphere of women. From you must come her religious, her mothers, her teachers, her writers, her social workers, her medical technicians, her nurses. . . . Bring to these vocations the Christian social principles that you have learned here at the Mount. As graduates of a Catholic college, as true daughters of your Alma Mater, "make all men feel the attraction of Christian goodness," as Our Holy Father says of Our Lady in the Marian year prayer.

Yours is a great apostolate, yours is a great responsibility but yours, too, is a glorious opportunity of bringing souls to know and to love God.

As we bid you a prayerful farewell, we trust that you will be true to the work that has been confided to you. We follow you with our prayers. We ask Christ and His Blessed Mother to be with you always in all that you do. In your successes and in your failures turn to them for courage and help. Be true always to your Alma Mater and let her motto be your guide: DEUS ILLUMNATIO MEA. If God be your light, you will find true happiness

That Christ keep you always near to Himself and that His Blessed Mother be your never-failing help is the daily prayer of

Your devoted,

CHAPLAIN'S MESSAGE

June, 1954

Dear Graduates,

It is possible to look back over four years of college, to think dimly of stacks of books and piles of notes, to recall vaguely assignments by the score and examinations by the dozen, and then to realize with a sense of dismay that much of all that knowledge, steadily absorbed and periodically disgorged, seems to have vanished. Little remains save bits and scraps of information, a word here, an idea there. The courses of your senior year may still be fresh in your memories but already they are on their way to join the ghosts of the past. The dying echoes of "substance" and "accidents" mingle with a distant rumble of sines and cosines, and through a faint murmur of Dante and Shakespeare comes the weak protest of the bryozoa and the arthropods. Was it a dream? Where has time flown? What did I get out of it all? Of what use will it be to me?

If this is your thought and these your questions on the eve of graduation, then pause awhile. It is too soon yet to be arriving at conclusions and passing judgment. You have to wait and look back before you can make a fair estimate of the education you have received. What now seems to have been speculative, dull, unreal, impractical; what now appears to have been confusing, disordered, haphazard; what you think you never learned or have forgotten—under the impact of life and in the light of experience, will gain meaning and significance, will come to life, will fall into place. Then you will look back with quiet thankfulness to God for the grace of these years.

For you have received, be it ever so imperfectly, the treasures of Christian humanism. The thought of ancient Greece, the institutions of old Rome, the discoveries of modern science, the gems of literature and the treasures of art have been caught up in the net of Christian Faith and delivered into your keeping. So live that you may be less unworthy of this trust. May the Son of Mary find His delight in you always.

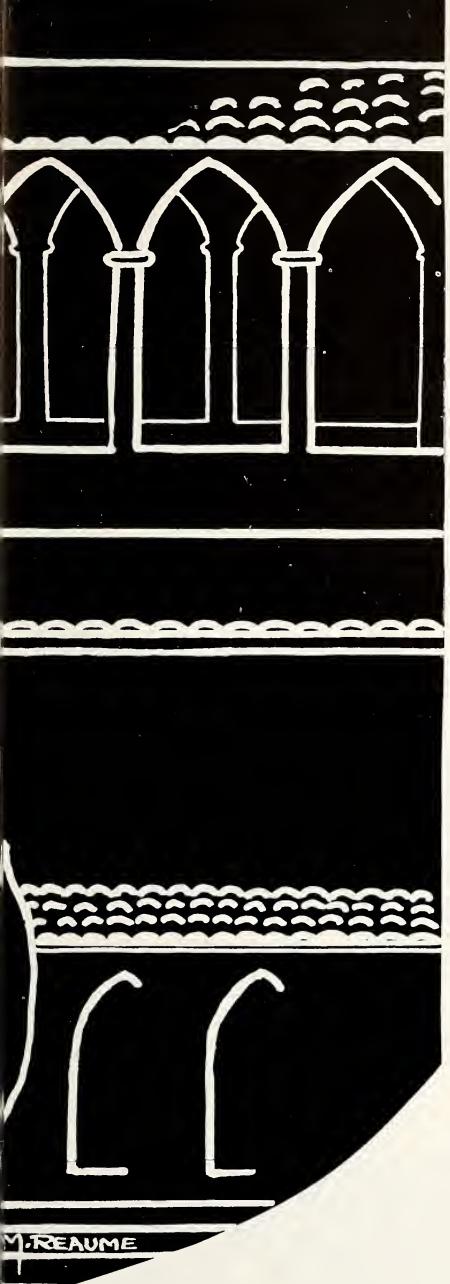

Devotedly yours in Christ,

Father O'Reilly.

SENIORS . . . A DREAM

With September came a rush of Senior activities—excessive use of Senior Privileges; flurry of work in departmental units; hibernation of student teachers; and the first senior night out, the reading of "John Brown's Body". October found Seniors relaxing at Anne Frances Russell's house for a party.

St. Timothy's parish hall hosted the annual spaghetti dinner in November, and December rushed by with working, holidays, and an evening's stop at the ballet. Jeanette Gualano offered hospitality to "Night at the Mount" seniors who weeks later put on (to quote) "the best one yet"!!

COME TRUE

Pat Perram Michelmore joined Barbara Bashe Robinson as two of the "first to go". Twenty-first birthdays were celebrated at Helen McEachen's in February and St. Patrick toasted on March 17. In April Marion Reaume christened her new home with—not champagne—but seniors.

May seemed busiest as Seniors said goodbye in oriental decor at "Sayonara"; looked proudly at the 30% of graduates' engagement rings and at the other 70%'s smiling faces; splashed through the last night out at Jane Brander's; thanked Juniors gratefully for a wonderful Prom; recollected thoughts, aims, and desires as Baccalaureate arrived. June and graduation are synonymous, as are happy, fulfilled days and Mount Saint Mary's College.

SOPHOMORES

After completing their green stage, Sophs were ready for the activities that fill the college year.

In September they helped to haze freshmen during Red Week. In October they worked hard to make the Halloween Party a success. Sophs next sponsored "The Harvest Ball" for the benefit of the Fine Arts Building.

The highlight of the year came in February with the sophomore pre-lenten formal. Dances were not the only accomplishments. Sophomores worked on the St. Patrick's Day Breakfast and Father-Daughter Night too.

One of the last activities was for Sophomores only—a class party which brought friends together for an evening of fun, food and entertainment.

With this year successfully closed, Sophs are looking toward the next, to attain the rank of upper classmen.

Capped with the traditional black and white dink, the freshman class of '57 started a full and exciting year. As "loyal comrades" to big sisters frosh faithfully lugged gunny sacks to classes during Green Week. A display of talent was shown in the Frosh Frolics and again in the get-acquainted party.

Other activities were: compiling the roster, the use of parliamentary procedure in class meetings, introduction of new second semester students, reading and discussion of the college constitution, a pre-Lenten party, and a joint picnic with Loyola Freshmen. Guided by their patron, Saint Maria Goretti, Freshmen of '57 have completed their first activity-filled year.

GOVERNMENT

The Student Council, under the effective leadership of Rosemary Czuleger, carried out many plans and directed numerous activities this year. Coordinated calendars, Orientation program, and planned general assemblies, were just a few of the Council's projects. The Coordinating Council functioned smoothly and many conflicts were avoided. An assembly period given over to club meetings was a welcome innovation. The Council also saw that the nurses became more a part of Mount life, and that elections were more orderly. The student Council was just that this year—the active organ of the Student Body.

President

Composed of the president, elected representatives and the highest ranking boarder officer from each class, the Boarder Council promoted better cooperation among resident students. Telephone duty, hall duty, and social nights were under the direction of the Council. Better understanding and family unity between faculty and students was achieved through this group.

OUR LADY'S SODALITY

Sodality Prefect

Sodality Council (seated) : Noreen Higgins, Eileen O'Laughlin, Jude Longshore, (standing) : Pat Redmond, Marianne Munch, Eunice Smuske, Rosemary Lucente.

Four active interest groups formed the core of Sodality activity this year. The Marian group sponsored both theological discussions and Marian Year projects. Promoting the League of the Sacred Heart, Holy Hour and devotion to the Blessed Sacrament was the work of the Eucharistic group. The Christian literature group sold Christopher books and pamphlets and presided over the Christmas book sale. Corporal works of mercy were performed by the Social Action group who visited hospitals, taught Confraternity classes and conducted drives for charity.

Innovations included an inter-collegiate study day, a closed retreat at Sacred Heart Retreat House, and an informal dance. Bishop McGucken paid his annual visit in November and presided

Rev. James O'Reilly received new Sodalists on the feast of Our Lady of Lourdes. A panel discussion on Catholic Press Month, Holy Hour for the Pope, retreat, and a Marian year pilgrimage were important events of the spring semester. Seniors and engaged couples took part in the Marriage Conference in April. The semester closed with Mary's Day activities—Mass and breakfast for Sodalists and their mothers, rosary, May procession, and crowning of Our Lady. The co-operation and generosity of the Sodality council and committee members has made the year spiritually fruitful.

PI DELTA PHI

ALPHA MU GAMMA

PI DELTA PHI—FRENCH HONOR SOCIETY

Pi Delta Phi aims to promote study of, love of, and interest in French culture. Membership in the society is open to upper division French majors or minors who fulfill the scholastic requirements.

During the fall semester the Mount Chapter held initiation ceremonies for regular and honorary members at a tea. Professor Gabriel Bonno, of the French department at UCLA spoke at the initiation. New members included: Maureen Nally, Eileen O'Loughlin, Mary Reimann, Helen Romlein, Barbara Selna, Dr. Bierman, Sister Hildegard, Rev. James O'Reilly.

ALPHA MU GAMMA

Alpha Mu Gamma, the national honor society for students who have done outstanding work in the field of modern languages, increased its membership this year. With Eileen O'Loughlin as president the society enjoyed a variety of scholastic and social activities.

KAPPA GAMMA PI

Members in the Southern California Chapter of KAPPA GAMMA PI graduate with scholastic distinction and are outstanding in extra-curricular activities. Georgia Crupe, Shirley Burke, and Mary Jane Storm were chosen for membership this year.

DELTA EPSILON SIGMA

Membership in DELTA EPSILON SIGMA is based on high scholastic achievement and on indications of making learning effective through Catholic philosophy to modern society. Members chosen this year are Maureen Fox, Anne Park, Barbara Dobrott, Kathleen Higgins, Rosemary Czuleger, and Jane Brander.

NSA

ACTIVE NSA MEMBERS — Back row: S. Stevenson, J. Carey, L. Mattson (Campus Coordinator), E. Smuske, C. Weldy. Front row: J. Mason, J. Marshall, P. Sanders, A. Rotsler.

The National Students Association well fulfilled its purpose this year by serving the student community and promoting student interest and welfare. As an intercollegiate organization it helped the colleges to become aware of, and to cooperate better with each other. Student-discipline service, study travel programs, and vocational guidance are a part of its program.

NFCCS

The National Federation of Catholic College Students, comprising over 2,000 students, aims to promote closer collaboration between students of all Catholic colleges.

On campus it functions as a service unit to all clubs by fostering student leadership and interesting students in co-curricular activities.

Most NF activities on campus have been accomplished through the student Council, The View, and NFCCS active members. Such activities have distributed commission literature, and served the Sodality, SWES, YCS, and other clubs; promoted the European Marian tours, regional activities, and Mary's Hour.

NFCCS workers hold meeting in lounge: J. Schneider, V. Munton, N. Galt (Campus delegate), L. Tucker, L. Woods, K. Higgins, M. Nestor.

PARNASSIANS

Parnassians, the campus English club, stimulates among English majors a more active interest in the field of literature — past and contemporary. To achieve this objective the club promoted field trips and attendance at lectures by noted writers.

During second semester, members visited the Huntington Library and Exhibits in San Marino. Also on the busy schedule during the year were several movies based on great contributions to English literature, one of which was Julius Caesar. Members also contributed to The View and Inter Nos, and won top honors in the Cabrini literary contest as well as first place in the Atlantic creative writing contest.

Participating in Co-ordinating Council activities Parnassians joined efforts with Eusebians and produced the effective "House of Horror" for Night at the Mount.

INTERNATIONAL LANGUAGE CLUB

The International Language Club has united friends and has led toward appreciation of cultures and customs of other countries. At the monthly meetings girls representing Spanish, Hawaiian, Filipino, Italian, German, Chinese, French and Japanese ancestry joined their hearts with the hearts of all.

The many activities of this year included occasional "foreign dinners", an orientation tea, guest speakers, films, a clothes drive, the "Cosmo Cotillion" in February and "The Round-the-World" festival in April.

The club has representatives in the Western Area Council of Foreign Students where students of local universities and colleges meet to combine fellowship and interests.

KAPPA THETA MU

Kappa Theta Mu, the science club, was organized to try to integrate various fields of scientific endeavor. A more scientific explanation of its purpose follows:

Kappa Theta Mu—God Rules the World
Electrons: Students of biological sciences, chemistry, mathematics, nursing.
Nucleus: Four officers directing electrons.
Charge: Programs of scientific interest.
Physical Change: Field trips to places of scientific interest.

SWES

SWES is a social and service club which provides opportunities for girls who anticipate careers in the field of nursing, business, and social welfare. Its purpose is to prepare a Christian girl for a place in the home, the parish, and the community.

SWES activities, in progress before the opening of fall semester, began with a spaghetti dinner at Barbara Dobrott's home. Early in October old members welcomed new students to the Mount and to SWES at a formal tea.

The Settlement Committee joined WRA to entertain the children at Pacoima with a Halloween Party, followed by a jointly sponsored SWES and Sodality Christmas Party.

At the close of the fall semester, alumnae members were invited to an informal party at which they answered questions of undergraduates about their present positions.

The second semester found SWES presenting stimulating and informative programs for Intercultural Week, Family Week, and U.N. Week.

An installation banquet closed a successful year.

EUSEBIANS

1953-54 was filled with old and new events for the history club of the Mount.

Yearly activities for the club began with a welcome tea for all new members in October. In November the club sponsored an evening at the movies where more than 100 girls saw Julius Caesar. Since Eusebians is mainly a study club, discussions are held at least once a month. Books such as Daniel Sargent's Our Land and Our Lady, Frank Sheed's Communism and Man, and the collected work entitled Communism and Christians, were used this year. In December a panel discussed the Bill of Rights for the student body and the annual Christmas Party entertained a group of children.

The club ran a booth for Night at the Mount. February saw members wearing Eusebian pins for the first time in the history of the club. April and the alumnae tea celebrated the twentieth anniversary of the organization. May ended the year with the annual banquet and installation of officers. The club is one of the three initial members of the newly organized Inter-collegiate Historical Association for promoting the Catholic view of world and domestic affairs.

Eusebians discuss current affairs at one of their meetings. Members include J. Marshall, E. Luna, F. Blackburn, G. Maloney, P. Kiney, G. Francis, G. Von der Ahe, J. Glass, and J. Markel.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The Home Economics Club aims to create an understanding of Christian living in community and family life, and to stimulate action toward this goal among students at Mount Saint Mary's. One of the most active and prestige-winning clubs on campus, the year started with an initiation tea for new members. Anne Park was elected publicity chairman of the college clubs, Southern section of the American Home Economics Association. At Christmas the club invited Immaculate Heart College Home Economics Club to a party to stimulate interest in their newly organized club. They aided the Indian Mission Home Economics department by sending a subscription to a popular home economics magazine.

During Family Week the club gave a mother-baby party, with alumnae mothers and their children as guests. In May they highlighted a busy year with the eighth annual fashion show and tea, in which students modeled fashions they had made themselves. Thus members created specific and fruitful programs to put into very real practice their club aims.

Officers of Tri Rho chat with Leo Politi, illustrator of children's books, after a lecture by him. Eileen O'Laughlin, secondary vice-president; Leo Politi, Phyllis Kiney, elementary vice-president; Clare Goss, secretary; Rosemary Heffron, president.

TRI RHO

Tri Rho, whose name denotes the three R's of education, has as its aim the furthering of Catholic ideals of education and the developing of informed minds and professional attitudes. The club is an active chapter of the California Student Teachers' Association with a co-chairmanship in the state-wide Ethics Committee. Members attended a Leadership Conference at Asilomar and a workshop at San Diego State College. Holding a seat on the Executive Council, Tri-Rho took part in meetings in Los Angeles and Monterey.

This year's activities included a tea for new members, an educational film, panel discussions, an annual Alumnae tea, the dart booth at Night at the Mount, and guest speakers including Mrs. Virginia Neal, a school supervisor, and a representative of a publishing company. Guided by Sister Hortensia, Tri Rho has had a fruitful and busy year.

MUSIC CLUB

The Music Club opened the year with an informal swimming party in July. A tea with favorite records as the theme brought members together in September. Activity in various musical ensembles of the school was stressed, as was the Philharmonic Series. A chapter of the Music Educator's National Conference and a Philharmonic Forum Chapter were reorganized for the year.

The dance band provided a musical background for the Drama department's presentation of Craig's Wife. An Advent Pageant combining the Choral Group and the Drama department pioneered college television on KTLA, Channel 5. The combined Symphonette and Choral Group presented Sr. Celestine's musical setting of The Hound of Heaven for the Aquinian Guild.

Still smiling, Val Munton gives blood for the cause.

RED CROSS UNIT

Our Red Cross Unit boasts of being one of the most active campus units in the Los Angeles area.

The enthusiastic participation in varied activities marked the program of the Red Cross unit this year.

Projects included hostessing of International Students, dressing dolls and knitting sweaters for underprivileged children. A vigorous Blood Drive was also undertaken by the active members.

Display set-ups and assemblies on water safety, civil defense, and blood cultivated the interest of the campus.

THE MOUNT HANDBOOK

The Mount Handbook again became the ready reference of every Mount student. School calendar; student body; Sodality, and club officers; all organizations; and the Alma Mater are just a few of the topics covered in the handbook.

The View, the college newspaper, this year smaller in size but not in quality, kept Mount students up to date on all the activities of the college.

The View, published tri-weekly except during exams, is a member of the Associated Collegiate Press and the Catholic School Press Association.

Last minute rush, click of typewriters, deadlines, and proofreading were all a part of the program; however, The View went to press on time and then to the eager hands of Mount students.

Kappa Delta Chi has been an active sorority at Mount Saint Mary's since 1930. Its main ideal is the establishment of true friendship and sisterhood among members, as well as alumnae.

The activities of the sorority this year were many. Early in October, Kappas presented a Fashion Tea at Bullock's Westwood, with proceeds going to the Fine Arts building. Members planned the annual rush tea, the informal party with its traditional Western theme, and the formal acceptance dinner. Later in the year came the formal presentation of pledges at the Santa Ynez Inn, the Christmas party, a closed weekend at Balboa, formal initiation of new members, and an alumnae luncheon held at the Fox Hills Country Club.

As an organization of young Catholic women, Kappa Delta Chi attended Holy Mass and received Communion in a body on several occasions.

Christmas boxes for underprivileged children were prepared at the annual Christmas Party. Thus working, praying, and having fun together gave Kappa Delta Chi a fruitful and enjoyable year.
